Dear Runners,

It is with great pleasure that I welcome you to an event that holds a unique place not only on the map of Polish racing but, above all, in the hearts of those who cherish movement and the thrill of athletic competition.

The PKO Gdynia Half Marathon is more than just another race. It is a day when thousands strive to realize their ambitions, fulfill their dreams, and surpass their own limits.

For years, PKO Bank Polski has supported such moments and the people who have the courage to try, to face challenges, and to return to the track despite exhaustion. We stand with you both when you are breaking records and when you simply seek the profound satisfaction of crossing the finish line.

In a world that is accelerating ever faster, it is sport that offers us a moment of respite. It teaches us consistency, determination, and the belief that every single step matters. We firmly believe that physical activity is one of the most vital pillars of a healthy and conscious life.

To all participants, I wish outstanding results, the pure joy of the run, and a deep sense of pride in conquering the distance. May this half marathon serve as a catalyst for further challenges—be they athletic, personal, or professional. To those cheering from the sidelines: I ask for your spirited support. Your encouragement consistently lends runners wings during the most demanding stretches of the course.

I look forward to seeing you on the route and at the finish line!

With highest regards,

Dear Runners,

It is my great honor to welcome you to the PKO Gdynia Half Marathon 2026! This year's edition holds a special significance for all of us, as we gather during the centenary of Gdynia. It is a profound moment that further underscores how deeply this race has become woven into the history and identity of our city.

I am immensely proud to announce that this year we are setting an all-time attendance record, with as many as 10,000 runners standing at the starting line! This is a testament to the fact that Gdynia remains one of the most prominent landmarks on Poland's running map. We thank you for your continued trust—it is our greatest motivation to further evolve this event. I would like to extend an especially warm welcome to all the debutants—both those facing the half-marathon distance for the first time and the participants of the PKO Gdynia 5K. Your courage and determination serve as an inspiration to us all. The finish line awaits, and the emotions you will experience there will stay with you for a lifetime.

We are also delighted by the ever-growing number of women participating in the race. Your presence, energy, and strength make our event even more extraordinary. We believe that Gdynia—a city that is open, active, and modern—continues to be a place where everyone can achieve their athletic aspirations.

Furthermore, we take great pride in the growth of our accompanying events, including the races for our youngest participants. It is there that the future enthusiasts of the sport are born, and we are honored to support their very first steps in the world of running.

An event of this magnitude could not take place without the support of numerous individuals and institutions. I wish to express my heartfelt gratitude to the Gdynia City Authorities for their steadfast support in co-creating this unique celebration. My thanks also go to our partners and sponsors, led by PKO Bank Polski, as well as all the companies and organizations involved in the logistics of the race. Your contribution is of immeasurable value.

Above all, however, I thank you—the participants. It is you who create the atmosphere of this event. Your passion, joy, and sporting spirit make this weekend truly exceptional.

A magnificent festival of running in the jubilee city of Gdynia lies ahead of us. Cherish every moment, enjoy the course, the cheers of the spectators, and the vibrant energy of the city. Share your smiles with one another, with the volunteers, and with the whole of Gdynia.

Good luck, and see you at the finish line!

Pomorskie

The Pomeranian Voivodeship is an extraordinarily attractive region that consistently ranks among the premier tourist destinations in Poland. Its primary allure stems from its coastal location, remarkable landscape diversity, and a unique historical legacy that has shaped its distinct cultural heritage.

Pomerania is further distinguished by a rich mosaic of traditions, where large metropolitan centers coexist with clearly defined regional communities such as Kashubia, Kociewie, the Słupsk Land, and Żuławy. Each of these subregions presents its own characteristic architecture, customs, and folklore, ensuring that any journey through the province allows for the discovery of a highly multifaceted identity.

The natural landscape of Pomerania is characterized by an exceptionally varied topography, ranging from the vast sandy beaches and shifting dunes of the Słowiński National Park to the serene lakes and ancient woodlands of Kashubia and the Tuchola Forest. These areas form a precious mosaic of ecosystems that serve as vital sanctuaries for numerous bird species and other protected flora and fauna. The region's environmental wealth is preserved through an extensive network of conservation areas, including two national parks and nine landscape parks, which highlight the ecological significance of the territory.

To accommodate its many visitors, Pomerania boasts one of the most robust hospitality sectors in the country, concentrated largely within its coastal reaches. The province offers nearly 15,400 lodging establishments, encompassing both hotels and other professional hospitality services, providing more than 33,000 beds across all categorized facilities. This extensive infrastructure is supported by excellent international connectivity. Regular ferry lines link the region with Scandinavia, while Gdańsk Airport facilitates approximately 100 scheduled flights to 27 European countries through 11 different airlines. Furthermore, the Tricity remains highly accessible by land, particularly via the Amber Highway (A1).

The region also offers a sophisticated infrastructure dedicated to active tourism and outdoor recreation. Enthusiasts can explore 4,500 kilometers of cycling paths, including 690 kilometers of the prestigious international EuroVelo 10/13 and EuroVelo 9 routes. For those drawn to equestrian pursuits, there are 847 kilometers of trails managed by forestry districts and approximately 250 identified stables. Water sports are equally well-represented, with 40 kayaking routes stretching nearly 1,600 kilometers across diverse terrains, complemented by 16 modern yacht marinas and numerous pristine beaches that provide ideal conditions for leisure and maritime activities.

The cultural landscape of the province is equally vibrant, supported by numerous institutions that foster artistic and educational growth. The region's potential is defined by 16 theaters and musical institutions offering year-round programming, including international festivals and high-caliber performances. A cornerstone of this infrastructure is the network of 102 museum facilities and branches that curate and present the historical and artistic legacy of the province. This cultural offer is seamlessly integrated through various themed trails, which allow visitors to engage with the history, architecture, and landscape of Pomerania in a profound and organized manner, further enriching the narrative of the region's unique identity.

Let's make sure race packs pickup goes smoothly!

We've got it! The start list includes a record-breaking 10,000 names. This number is truly impressive, and we can already feel the incredible energy you will bring to the course. Such a large-scale event is a great celebration, but also a significant logistical challenge.

To help us enter race mode in good spirits and without unnecessary stress, we kindly ask you to plan your race packet pickup together with us.

From experience, we know that the busiest times at the Race Office are two peaks: right after opening and at the very end of opening hours. If possible, please aim for the mid-hours. Try not to leave your pickup until the last minute—queues in the final hours are almost guaranteed, and pre-race stress doesn't do anyone any good.

To speed up the packet collection process, please check your race number in advance and prepare the necessary documents (QR code/ID card). The quicker you are ready at the counter, the faster the next person will receive their packet!

Why is it worth coming earlier?

By collecting your packet in advance, you gain:

- peace of mind on race day
- time to visit the Fit Living Expo booths
- confidence that everything is under control

We are one big running family. We count on your cooperation and mutual kindness. Let's create this record-breaking event in the best possible spirit together! See you at the Race Office!
